E-COMMERCE WEBSITE IS NOW LIVE

Our drive to create a comfortable and easy space for our customers, has been a top priority for us since our store opened. And there is no bigger commitment to this concept than launching our hassle-free online store.

Over the last 6 months we have been working hard on creating an easy to use website for our customers to purchase quality farming products from the comfort of their tractor cab... or their milking parlour... or anywhere on farm for that matter!

The website, like our store, focuses on our farming community and providing locally sourced, quality products as a must. farmersdirect.co.uk is an extension of the quality service, knowledgeable staff and range of products you already access in store.

The beauty of our new website is that you can access information and products from anywhere on farm with your mobile, tablet or your PC. If there are any products you can't find on our website, please call the store on 01409 259 600 who will be happy to source products and advise you.

Heiniger Cattle Clipping Tips

Most people are aware of the concept of clipping horses in order to reducing sweating during exercise and keep them healthy and comfortable. It is no surprise therefore that clipping cattle is also a necessity for many farmers and smallholders and a common practice when animals are housed in the autumn. Clipping store cattle is an effective method for reducing the risk of pneumonia in young stock over the winter. Cattle can easily sweat up when there is a temperature change, which can chill the animals and contribute to the possibility of contracting pneumonia. Clipping out thick coats of cattle stored in close contact will also reduce the risk of lice and other skin parasites.

Clipping a strike of hair off the backs of the cattle (approximately 5cm either side of the spine) will help prevent sweating when there are climatic changes. Clipping is a non-invasive, cost-effective and simple way to help keep this respiratory condition of pneumonia at bay. It is good practice to clip the cattle as soon as they are brought in - to safeguard their health, and if they are going to be inside for a long period it would also be advisable to clip out the tails. Clipping also has the benefit of giving the young stock every chance to gain weight, if they are cool and comfortable the daily intake and growth rate will naturally increase. Therefore, clipping throughout the winter is worth pursuing.

Great care must be taken when clipping cattle as they are not necessarily going to be compliant – especially if they are not used to being handled. Clipping can be quite stressful for the animal so it is important that the job can be done quickly and efficiently. Which is why we recommend the Heiniger X-Series. Either the battery powered Xplorer clipper or the mains powered Xperience clipper or Xpert shearing head, gives you the choice you need to get the job done quickly and efficiently.
